

NEW-YORK HISTORICAL SOCIETY MUSEUM & LIBRARY

Photographs by Larry Silver, 1949-1955

On View July 1 – December 4, 2016

Selected PR Images

On view at the New-York Historical Society beginning July 1, 2016, Photographs by Larry Silver, 1949-1955 showcases 45 photographs of everyday New Yorkers and major New York City sites taken during a transformative period in history. This new exhibition highlighting the early works of the Bronx-born photographer captures the day-to-day life in the city's post- World War II urban environment that has since largely disappeared. Notable landmarks depicted include the Empire State Building, the original Pennsylvania Station before it was demolished, and the Headquarters of the United Nations when it was a new addition to the city's skyline, as well as iconic locations such as subway stations, the river piers, Central Park, and the New York Botanical Garden in the Bronx.

Larry Silver
Children on United Nations Construction Pile, 1951
Gelatin silver print
Gift of William and Jeryl Silverstein
Collection of the New-York Historical Society

Larry Silver
Boy on Rooftop, 1951
Gelatin silver print
Gift of William and Jeryl Silverstein
Collection of the New-York Historical Society

Larry Silver
Macy's Parade, 1951
Gelatin silver print
Gift of William and Jeryl Silverstein
Collection of the New-York Historical Society

Larry Silver
Nearby Eggs, 1952
Gelatin silver print
Gift of William and Jeryl Silverstein
Collection of the New-York Historical Society

Larry Silver
Manhattan Backyard, 1952
Gelatin silver print
Gift of William and Jeryl Silverstein
Collection of the New-York Historical Society

Larry Silver
Raft, New York Botanical Garden, 1950
Gelatin silver print
Gift of William and Jeryl Silverstein
Collection of the New-York Historical Society

